COLORADO SPRINGS REGIONAL JOINT LAND USE STUDY

Take our survey on land use issues and challenges in Southern Colorado.

The Joint Land-Use Study is a community-focused process to examine local issues related to land use when military installations and communities are neighbors.

The study asks citizens, elected officials, and community organizations to identify issues that will then be examined by subject matter experts and local lawmakers. The JLUS will ultimately produce a road map to address these issues and promote compatible land use in the four-county study area.

You can help us do that by sharing your input in our five-minute survey and sharing it with your friends, colleagues, and club or organization.
