A Resolution Designating April 2016 National Landscape Architecture Month

Presenter:

Chris Lieber, Parks Development Manager - Parks, Recreation and Cultural Services

Summary:

National Landscape Architecture Month recognizes and celebrates the valuable contributions made by all Landscape Architects in dedication to the health, safety, and welfare of all people through the planning and design of the public realm, stewardship of land and water resources, to protect and conserve Colorado’s scenic beauty, fragile ecosystems, and natural resources; to include active recreation through creating public parks, trails, and open spaces; to include site planning of residential and commercial spaces in new and redeveloped areas; and to carry forward historical and cultural awareness through restoration projects.

Background:

National Landscape Architecture Month is observed each year to recognize and celebrate the valuable contributions made by Landscape Architects. Through The American Society of Landscape Architects (ASLA) we seek to raise the public’s awareness about the breadth of influence this profession has in our community; calls attention to the role Landscape Architects play in our world; recognizes the contributions they provide to improve the quality of life today, and for future generations around the world and specifically in Colorado.

This item supports the City's strategic goal through investing in infrastructure as well as supports building community and collaborative relationships. Whether creating, or working with the development community, to build trails, parks, sports fields, preserve land, or build neighborhoods, Landscape Architects are integral to the health, safety and welfare and the quality of life of our citizens through sensitive planning and design and the oversight of the built product.
