PROJECT SUMMARY

The City of Colorado Springs' Public Art Ordinance is part of the City's on-going efforts to recognize the value and significance of artwork throughout the community and region. City Council has determined that the oversight and management of the City's public art collection is an executive and administrative function of the City rather than a legislative function overseen by City Council. As such, the City's Public Art Ordinance proposes updates to the Unified Development Code (UDC) to reflect the current approach and thinking on the oversight and establishment of artwork.

PUBLIC ART ORDINANCE

BACKGROUND & HISTORY

- 1982 – City Council created the Art Commission of the Pikes Peak Region (known as “Public Art Commission”)
- 1983-2016 – Aspects and focus of the Public Art Commission’s governance were refined by City Council
- 2010 – City adopts strong-mayor form of government
- 2020 – City adopted its first public art master plan (entitled “Public Art COS”)
- 2025 – City Council initially adopted an ordinance dissolving the Public Art Commission
- FUT – Office of the Mayor will work with agency and stakeholders to re-establish the Public Arts Commission under the legislative branch to administer the City’s public art collection
