Launchpad Apartments

About 10 years ago CSU contacted me in a panic, they said my gas line was coming apart because the ground was moving. When the guy got here to fix it I asked him if I needed to worry and he said: "Naaaaa...your next door neighbor's is a LOT worse.". In my head I thought "your mouth is saying no but your words are saying yes".

Can you at least offer to cover outside utility hookups from the start of the project until maybe a year after the project is finished? So if my water line or gas or other utility hookup breaks or separates CSU will take care of it? I looked into home warranty plans but they all get crappy reviews.

Thanks for listening!
